The Science of Grip

To defend against these slips, has come up with a collection that provides a very imminent feature – Non-slip flooring for the safety of millennials, especially the heavily active younger generation, and also for the delicate older seniors in your family. This collection is with a vision 'To protect them at all costs and minimize the slips and falls through maximizing the safety and security'.

The science behind R-value and its relationship with friction – Friction, when created can help a human have fewer chances of falling. It is simply a force acting between 2 surfaces, a person's body and the surface of the floor, to resist the slide of one over the other. In tiles for flooring, it is measured in terms of R-values - our product has R10 which is one of the best anti-slip properties.
